

New Director's Training: Orientation to School Nutrition Program Management

The Virginia Department of Education , Office of School Nutrition Programs is offering two trainings for new and aspiring school nutrition directors!

The New Director's Academy is designed for both new directors and those that are aspiring to become a school nutrition director. This training is also applicable to staff responsible for school nutrition programs, but are not in the role of School Nutrition Program Director. The Academy is designed to provide you with the necessary tools to run a successful school nutrition program. It is the goal of the Academy to help you identify your program's strengths as well as areas that need improvements and to assist you in prioritizing and making long term plans for program success.
